GEO STRATEGIES ASSISTS NISSAN'S NETWORK PLANNING NEEDS IN ROMANIA

Bucharest, London

Geo Strategies Ltd (Experian Business Strategies partner for Romania) has concluded a consultancy project for Nissan Europe in relation to Romania.

Romania has seen a huge growth in Automotive sales in recent years; in a fast moving market where consumerism is coming of age, understanding socio-demographics, lifestyles, culture and behaviour of the Romanian consumer are becoming essential for maintaining sales and improving profitability.

Damien Bossut, Project Manager Nissan Europe, said: "The success of our dealerships in every Nissan country is dependent on a complex range of factors; Romania has been evolving very fast and at Nissan Europe we need to have a timely understanding of how these factors are changing so that we are serving the Romanian consumer in an optimal manner now and in the future".

Automotive importers and manufacturers design and develop their networks based on the levels of supply, health of the economy, type of customers in the catchments areas, demand, accessibility and competitive pressure. While there is no substitute for flair (best guess) in an early market or more aggressive stage, maintaining the perspective and a wider and better informed context is increasingly necessary in an ever-growing competitive environment.

Damien Bossut said: "We commissioned Geo Strategies to provide us with an understanding of the socio-demographics in Romania and of the pattern of change we should factor in our business looking forward. They have provided us with a pragmatic and well-informed approach, and a unique combination of local and global experience, based also on their Experian partnership status".

"We have been very impressed by the quality and accuracy of Geo Strategies input and the level of experience in their team."

Daniela Florea, CEO of Geo Strategies, said: "We are particularly pleased to be of assistance to Nissan Europe with their requirements for Romania; they have appreciated the benefits and the gains from of our analytical approach for both the strategic and tactical planning levels in Nissan.
